INVITATION TO PROSPECTIVE MEMBERS

This letter is to introduce the New Zealand Association of Economists, and to invite you to apply for membership. The Association was founded in 1959, and it has five constitutional objects:

- To promote collaboration and discussion among professional economists in New Zealand;
- To encourage research and to publish the results of that research and other relevant material;
- To obtain and disseminate information on research projects in progress or anticipated;
- To promote the profession of economics in New Zealand;
- To foster in all sections of the community interest in and understanding of New Zealand economic problems.

In pursuit of these objectives the Association each year publishes newsletters, organises one or two conferences for its members, and publishes its professional journal the New Zealand Economic Papers (three times a year). The Association also sponsors several annual prizes, the “Young Economists’ Essay Prize”, the “Bergstrom Scholarship in Econometrics”, and the “Jan Whitwell First Presenters Prize”, awarded at our Annual Conference.

The conferences are lively meetings in keeping with the important issues discussed at them. Because the Association’s constitution forbids it from making any statements on economic policy it is able to provide a neutral but effective forum for the analysis and debate of a wide range of economic issues. The conferences are a useful way of keeping up to date with the latest developments in economic thought. A feature in recent years has been the presence of distinguished overseas economists invited by the Association to speak on their area of expertise.

There are approximately 400 members in the Association. Membership is open mainly to those who have a degree in economics or commerce, and who in the normal course of work use the tools of economic analysis as teachers, investigators or advisers on economic matters. The subscription for a new member is $120.00, or $60.00 for students in their first year of graduation and for post-graduate students. This subscription includes two free copies of our Economic Journal “New Zealand Economic Papers”. I invite you to consider joining our Association.
